[SDVOSB] BADGE

The people leading an enterprise, and the potential of the people they lead, are its most consequential resource.

MCG operationalizes the human resources function so it delivers what the enterprise actually requires: leaders and teams equipped to produce the results the strategy assumes. A small, deliberate roster retained for judgment rather than volume, we offer a considered second read on the decisions that matter most, from advisors who have sat where our clients sit.

How MCG Can Help You

- Pressure-test a major decision, such as a reorganization or leadership change, before it is made.
- Translate strategy into the structure, roles, and talent needed to carry it out.
- Build a succession bench so leadership transitions are planned rather than improvised.
- Equip senior leaders through confidential executive coaching and advisory support.
- Lead through disruption with partners who have made decisions under real operational pressure.
- Reposition HR as an operating partner accountable for the capability of leaders and teams.

Officer and senior NCO, side by side

Two 22-year Army careers, one as an officer and one as a senior NCO. Clients get both vantage points: how decisions are made at the top, and how they are carried out by the people who execute them.

Services

Every MCG engagement serves one outcome: an organization whose leaders, structure, and culture can carry out its strategy. Each service line below contributes to operating effectiveness, and most engagements draw on several.

Strategic Planning

A strategy is only as sound as the organization's ability to carry it out. MCG facilitates planning with executive teams and boards that ties priorities to structure, roles, and accountable owners, then stays with the work through execution and review.

Organizational Capacity Building

Capacity is an organization's ability to perform under normal conditions and under strain. MCG applies its proprietary CATALYST Framework to assess where structure, talent, and culture support the mission, where they constrain it, and what it will take to close the gap.

Leadership Development

What an enterprise can achieve depends on the people who lead it and the potential of those they lead. MCG's leadership work draws on the partners' experience assessing, coaching, and developing leaders in demanding institutions.

- Executive coaching: confidential, one-on-one work with CEOs, executives, and rising leaders.
- Leader assessment: structured insight that informs selection, placement, and development.
- Succession planning: preparing the next generation of leaders before the need is urgent.
- Senior team effectiveness: aligning leadership teams on roles, decisions, and ways of working.
